

NINJA Checkin 7

Reflection on assignment:

Because of the days off that we had this week and the ways that the professors modified the assignments accordingly, I have felt very good about managing the difficulty of the assignment and feel confident in my ability to finish the assignment tonight. In other words, it has struck a good balance between difficult and accomplishable. Thus far I have completed almost all of the questions, and have been going to ninjas and professors throughout the week. As of now, I don't believe there are any outstanding concepts that I don't understand.

This week + feedback:

This week I feel like I was able to gain a better understanding of the concepts that were (very quickly) introduced in the assignments from last week. I feel like the teaching team handled the snow day and Thursday very well in terms of re-scoping the assignments and adding office hours, so I really appreciate that. My kaizen from last week was to make better use of office/NINJA hours, and I was able to do that this week.

There isn't anything I had in mind to specifically get out of the NINJA checkin.